

Could your debts be written off completely?

Unenforceable Loan Agreements

Stephensons

legal services the way you want them

During the excitement of buying a new car, a conservatory or a home improvement loan, it can be tempting to sign on the dotted line without looking closely at the details of the agreement.

At Stephenson's we have successfully handled many claims for consumers who were in possession of unenforceable finance agreements, so it's important to check what you are signing to avoid paying out more than they should be.

We can help with

We can offer advice on whether a loan or account is actually legally binding, and unlike some debt advisors, we do not work in conjunction with lenders and as such are 100% committed to the financial well-being of our clients. Typical problems can arise with:

- Personal loans
- Secured loans
- Car loans
- Hire purchase agreements
- Mortgages

If you are struggling to keep up with repayments on a secured or current loan of more than £5,000 let the leading team in the country check your agreement for free for any discrepancies which may mean the debt could actually be wiped out.

Key facts about us

- We are the leading team in the country at challenging unfair loan agreements and each year help write off thousands of pounds worth of debt for our clients.
- Our team can boast many successful cases in groundbreaking areas of the law.
- We offer regular 'legal surgeries' for a number of agencies, charities and advice providers, often taking on cases which are beyond their expertise.
- We are members of several court duty schemes, whereby we can offer immediate assistance when most needed and then follow a case to its conclusion.
- Our team comprises 7 dedicated specialists, with more than 30 years' combined experience.

Funding

We are able to offer a variety of funding options, including Legal Aid and Conditional Fee arrangements, also known as no-win, no-fee. Please contact us to find out more about your specific case:
